The growing popularity of food photography

Taking a photo of your food and posting it online is becoming more and more popular. However, not everyone thinks it's such a good idea.

Food photos are popular on social [1]_____ sites. People often post pictures of their meals. Many of them are of delicious looking food from [2]_____restaurants. Some people even find it [3]_____.

[4]_____, not all food photos are so attractive. There are now sites where you can post pictures of horrible-looking food. Users [5]_____ pictures of their depressing meals, which include things such as half-eaten bits of chicken, [6]_____ pizza and dodgy- looking soup.

Sad Desk Lunch was created by office worker Kira Fisher in 2012. At that time, she was working as a video editor in New York. "I was [7]_____ at my rather unappealing lentil soup, which I was eating at my desk, and just thought, I can't believe I eat this [8]_____, let alone eat it alone at my desk," she said.

Some chefs are trying to [9]_____food photography in their restaurants. Gills Goujon runs a three-starred restaurant in the southern France. He told news website France TV Info that every time his [10]_____ appear on social networks it "takes away the surprise, and a little bit of my intellectual property".

Another chef Alexander Gauthier [11]has_____ a "no cameras" logo on his menus. "Before, people took pictures of their families in the restaurant, now we take pictures of food. We tweet, we "like", we [12]_____ to comments, and the dish is cold", he explained.
